NO TAX FREEZE

Residents face 'democracy-dodging' council bill rise

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingston Council has been accused of "showing contempt" to residents after deciding to raise council tax by a fraction less than 2 per cent.

But ruling Lib Dem councillors have defended the move, saying the hike is essential to protect public services and residents most in need.

Taxpayers living in a band D property can expect to pay an extra 52p a week from April, about £27 annually, after the authority refused Government funding to freeze tax for a third consecutive year.

And by raising the tariff to just 1.99 per cent instead of 2 per cent, the council has avoided new Government legislation that forces local authorities to hold a referendum on excessive tax increases.

This week, Conservative Local Government Minister Brandon Lewis accused Kingston Council of "flagrant democracy-dodging".

He said: "Town halls looking to hike up the cost of living are showing real contempt for hard-working families and pensioners."

"Residents will be dismayed by this flagrant democracy-dodging. Kingston Council is doing families and pensioners a disservice by raising council tax to a hair's breadth below the trigger level in order to avoid a public vote instead of taking up this offer to help fund a freeze for the third year in a row.

"Councillors will find out what residents really think on the doorstep or through a kick in the ballot box."

But Lib Dem council leader Derek Osbourne described the freeze grant as "bribes" and told Local Government secretary Eric Pickles to "get his tanks off our lawns".

He said: "It costs us £200,000 to run a local election, so I'm assuming a referendum would cost about the same."

"So the Department for Communities and Local Government is saying we should put it up another 0.01 per cent to spend £200,000 of taxpayers' money on something that isn't a service.

"We had to find £2.4m in cuts in order to pay for last year's freeze. If Eric Pickles had put the freeze money into the revenue support grant then there would be lots of services we wouldn't have to cut."

"It's another bribe in order to get local councils to do what he wants them to do."

"He should get his tanks off our lawn. He doesn't run anything and he's not very good at it either."

Leader of the Kingston Conservatives, Councillor Howard Jones said "We have to expect this from a leader of the council who boasts he came into politics to spend public money, not save it."

Great chance to love your town this Valentine's Day

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

Plans for the first Love Kingston Day are taking shape with only a few weeks to go before the fundraiser.

This Valentine's Day will see the first dedicated day of action by Love Kingston, the charity appeal supporting community organisations.

The appeal needs to raise £193,052 by March this year in order to meet a Government match-funding target.

Borough leaders, including town centre manager Ros Morgan and university vice-chancellor Julius Weinberg, met this week to get behind the appeal.

One person backing the initiative is Surbiton resident Nancy Vlasto, 86, who will be hitting the streets on her mobility scooter this February 14, dressed as Blossom the pantomime horse.

Miss Vlasto and Blossom have raised money for several good causes over many years, including the Kingston Can Appeal which helped raise money to build Kingston Hospital's cancer ward, and was backed by the the Kingston Guardian.

She estimates she has raised about £125,000 for charity, and has been nominated by Kingston Volunteer Bureau for a lifetime achievement award.

She said: "It is ridiculous what I do. I just travel around slowly and when I see people gathering I make my way towards them. I am able to get around whereas other people are not always able to."

Celebrating borough's rich history of aviation

Kingston's Aviation Centenary Festival brought great pleasure to many people last year, writes June Sampson.

Now a follow-up exhibition is planned at Tudor Drive library and Tudor Hall in Tudor Drive, supplemented by photos and information about the Richmond Road Factory, which was sited nearby. There will also be daily talks on the factory and its products, and it is hoped many of the visitors will have worked there, and will want to talk with the oral history team on the "Hawker days" planned for the Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Bill Downey who, with David Hassard, is joint leader of the project, said: "It will give people a chance to meet ex-colleagues, and we hope they will bring any pictures or documents relating to Kingston's aviation industry, and the people who worked there, for us to scan."

The exhibition opens at 2pm on February 16.

On the other days it will open at 10am, with talks and side shows at 2pm.

Most of the wanted found thanks to our campaign

Police say they have arrested more than half of the suspects or criminals featured in the Kingston Guardian's Most Wanted gallery since it began a year ago.

Kingston police have arrested 43 out of the 70 people featured since October 2011.

About half told police they handed themselves in after seeing their faces in the newspaper.

Many of the people on the list had disappeared or failed to show up at court dates to answer charges.

Detective Inspector John Turner said: "Most Wanted has been enormously successful with more than half of those people featured being arrested, many of them thanks directly to the Kingston Guardian and information from its readers."

"We have saved time and money and succeeded in tracking many of them down who would otherwise still be at large. I would like to sincerely thank everyone involved and ask for their continued support."

Traditions in the making

The first Beating of the Bounds walk in Surbiton painted the town red with rituals, such as salsa dancing and hitting the walls with sticks.

Kicking off with a welcome breakfast at L'esperance Restaurant last Sunday, the event included a talk on the so-called Beating of the Bounds, before leading people on a lively tour of Surbiton.

David Jeevendrampillai, a UCL student leading the event, said: "It went brilliantly, we had more people turn up on the day than we expected."

It attracted about 35 people who learned the sardine salsa, a dance made up by the group of people who brought you Surbiton Ski Sundays.

Mr Jeevendrampillai said: "We did old and new rituals, such as hitting sticks at walls, then got back to the bar and people were awarded PhDs

Rituals: Old and new 'folklore' was celebrated by the club that brought you Ski Surbiton in cartography."

The next in this series of walks from the self-styled Free University of Seething will take place on February 3.

Residents of the Surbiton River Roads are being asked to share memories of their lives. To get involved search Seething Wells on Facebook.

There's snow point complaining

Trousered: A snowman

Children enjoyed a blissful snow day after being sent home from school early while angry commuters waited along crowded platforms for a train to work last week.

Much of the borough became carpeted in white from Friday morning as the winter chill took over the capital.

But sturdy Market Place traders worked on in solidarity despite the freezing conditions.

Florist Kate Cochran said: "I just got back from Finland where it was freezing cold so I'm not too bothered by the snow here."

Andy Whitesmith who has worked in the Dave and Brothers fruit and vegetable stall for 30 years, said: "My hands are a bit cold but it's all good. I just keep moving about."

into the weekend with families taking to Richmond Park to play on sledges, make snowmen and have snowball fights.

During the worst of the travel problems commuters at Surbiton and Worcester Park squeezed on to platforms as packed trains had no room to let anyone on.

But some even claimed the service had been better when the snow struck – despite trains to Chessington and Tolworth being cancelled.

Car troubles were at a minimum as Kingston Council said it had used more than 340 tonnes of salt to grit more than 400 roads in the borough.

Councillor Simon James, lead member for transport, said: "The council has worked hard to keep the borough running as smoothly as possible and to minimise any disruption throughout the bad weather."

There were 33 slips and trips over the weekend, according to the London Ambulance Service, a small rise on the weekend before.

Man, 77, dead in bathroom

A man found dead in his bathroom last week has been named as George Ackland, 77, of Warren Drive North, Kingston.

He died naturally of coronary heart disease therefore an inquest does not have to be held, South West London Coroner's Court said.

Mr Ackland died on January 8.

Student flat plan to be downsized

A student development proposal for Kingston Vale has been downsized and resubmitted after it was refused following a campaign by residents.

The new application is for 119 flats compared to the previous 133.

There will be fewer parking spaces and the complex will be a storey lower.

Town centre is 'safe for some time'

Kingston police's borough commander Martin Greenslade is stepping down at the end of the month, it has been announced.

But Kingston's next top police officer will not be head of a merged force with Richmond, he told the Kingston Guardian.

The Metropolitan Police has unveiled proposals to merge Kingston and Richmond with one borough commander as part of a plan to save £500m from the policing budget by 2015.

Detective Chief Superintendent Greenslade, who took over in July 2009, said: "It's something I'd like to see in the long term. It makes sense when you've got such a brilliant facility in Kingston and Richmond is closing down some of its facilities.

"But the plan at the moment is two separate boroughs with two separate borough commanders."

Kingston Council leader Derek Osbourne said: "He's done a marvellous job developing relationships and defending the Kingston corner."

"I think his ability to get the new custody suite built at Kingston police station will mean that Kingston policing in the town centre is safe for some time."

John Azah, director of

Stepping down: Martin Greenslade

Kingston Race and Equalities Council, said: "I think he's been a phenomenal leader and continued to do the things Kingston does best and engaged with the community and he's very clear about what he wanted for Kingston and also listened to what's good for the community."

Howard Jones, former detective and leader of Kingston Council's Conservatives, said: "The job of borough commander in modern policing is not an easy one when you have to live within very defined financial means."

"Martin's done a sterling job and we will be forever grateful to him."

D Chief Supt Greenslade said he planned to retire and "perfect his golf swing" from his Esher home.

Ups and downs

- Greatest success: "The future of policing in the heart of Kingston is guaranteed for the next 30 years, because I held out for the [new custody facility cells] to be built."
- Greatest regret: On the delay in getting ID systems installed at nightclub: "I think it would have been better if everyone could have moved much quicker on it."

Oceana 'undermines' awards

Oceana has been told it will not host a safe pubs awards ceremony and urged to withdraw altogether.

The 2012 Kingston Best Bar None awards were postponed to January 29 after the fatal stabbing of 20-year-old Jamie Sanderson.

In a letter to Oceana manager Dan Corry, Leigh Whitehouse, chairman of the Safer Kingston Partnership, wrote: "To award accreditation to your venue would not only be difficult for the victim's family, I also think it would undermine the Best Bar None accreditation as a whole."

The Best Bar None awards recognise positive contributions made by responsible licensees promoting sensible drinking.

Before the stabbing Oceana had won the award for best atmosphere in a Surrey Comet poll.

Luminar and Kingston Council will attend a hearing at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court on Monday, January 28, as the club attempts to overturn the decision to revoke its licence after Mr Sanderson's death.

Council's school bid is on top in proposal race

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

A Kingston Council-backed free secondary school bid has beaten a church bid to the first stage for funding after gaining the backing of more than 800 parents.

So far, 837 parents have registered their support for a school on the site of the North Kingston centre in Richmond Road.

The Kingston Educational Trust is backed by Kingston University, Kingston College and Kingston Council.

Councillor Patricia Bamford, lead member for children and young people, said: "These are exciting plans for a school that is for the whole community, at the heart of the community."

"It will be the borough's first free

Excited: Councillor Patricia Bamford at the centre KT73294 school and will have many distinctive features."

But church-backed King Edward the Martyr School missed the January 4 deadline for its funding application to the Government to open a free school.

Its backers, the Kingston Church

School Foundation (KCSF) and Woodard Academies Trust, said they would wait until the next round of bidding, possibly in November.

Mr Davis, a former leader of Kingston Council, said: "We're just reassessing at the moment."

"We had lots of support for the school but we always want more and delaying it actually gives us more time to get more."

"We are therefore holding our proposal until we gather significantly more backers."

The council-backed bid would establish a free school for 11 to 18-year-olds at the North Kingston Centre by September 2014.

The school would be co-educational, non-selective and non-faith, and would admit six forms of entry, or 180 children a year.

Gove's boost to free school

Education Secretary Michael Gove is "very supportive" of a £20m bid for a new secondary free school in north Kingston, according to his party colleague Zac Goldsmith.

Mr Gove's axing of the previous Labour Government's Building Schools for the Future programme in 2010 threw the future of the school into doubt.

Kingston had to put paid to hopes for a £300m revamp of every school in the borough.

He made the comments last Friday on a tour of Coombe Girls' School, where he took questions from students, but not our reporter.

Richmond MP Zac Goldsmith said: "I recommended Mr Gove to visit this school because it is an incredibly impressive school. I met students from there in Parliament."

"It was also the opportunity to put forward the case for funding a new school in north Kingston. He was very supportive."

The school was only told that Mr Gove would visit three days before.

Headteacher Deborah Walls said: "I am extremely proud of this school and all the wonderful things that happen here."

"He said that there were things from this school that he would want replicated, such as the number of girls studying physics in the sixth form."

Licence to frill: Dress sale holds back for Bond kudos

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

The Rose Theatre held back from selling off Dame Judi Dench's dress as part of its fifth birthday celebrations in the hope of getting a better price for it from international fans of the Bond star.

A private auction, on January 16 in Fulham, was due to receive bids for the dress worn by Dame Judi in her best-selling turn as Titania for Sir Peter Hall in A Midsummer Night's Dream, in February 2010.

But theatre chief executive Robert O'Dowd said: "We have identified the interested parties and we are trying to find a good way of doing an online auction. We actually chose not to auction the dress. It is such a great item we would want to open it up as much as possible.

"We have a supporter base overseas and we are trying to get them involved as much as possible."

Instead supporters including Vivienne Westwood, Peter Bowles, Timothy West and Prunella Scales saw a specially recorded answer phone message by Dame Judi sold as part of the auction, as well as an Uncle Vanya poster signed by the cast.

Before the event a theatre spokesman said: "We have been keeping it in good condition for the past two or three years.

"The office is littered with various signed things from the past five years of shows."

The theatre opened on January 16, 2008, after years of fundraising by the Kingston community and has kept the show going on despite financial difficulties and a lack of ongoing substantial support from the Arts Council.

The dress was worn in a Sir Peter Hall production

Rented out: The property in Oxford Avenue, Wimbledon. John Stalker was spared jail over his £296k fraud

Deadlinepix KT73400

Fraudster walks free from court

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

A self-appointed caretaker who rifled through his absent neighbour's post to siphon off more than £290,000 from his bank account over four years has been allowed to walk free from court.

John Charles Stalker, 52, claimed he became sick at the state of the abandoned flat below and at first started doing the gardening, tidying it up and paying the bills using £27,675 of his neighbour's money.

But over the next four years, Stalker, who lived in Canbury Park Road, Kingston, but also rented out a property to tenants above the flat in Oxford Avenue, Wimbledon, withdrew £296,324 for himself by registering for on-line banking using unopened bank statements.

He even rented the flat out to unwitting tenants before he was finally discovered last April.

He escaped with a 24-month suspended prison sentence and was ordered to carry out 180 hours of unpaid work on Tuesday, January 15, after his victim, John Elliott – who had not checked his bank account since 1997 – wrote to Kingston Crown Court asking for leniency.

Stalker has now repaid the money.

Defence counsel Timothy Greene said: "Mr Stalker became increasingly stressed.

"The smell from the property, the animals that were going into the property – it became more and more stressful.

"He knew about that money for years before he did anything. He did not do wrong in taking over the property.

"Mr Elliott is now the owner of a property for which he has not had to pay any money for renovating or maintaining. Mr Elliott is considerably better off by what has happened."

Stalker, a father of two teenage sons, admitted two counts of fraud. A charge of renting out the flat to unwitting tenants and a third count of fraud were left to lie on file.

Judge Georgina Kent said: "The time came when you used the money for your own benefit and your own business needs.

"But I have given you credit for your guilty plea and the fact that this money has been returned. It is in the public interest to punish you in a constructive way."

A neighbour in Oxford Avenue, who did not want to be named, said Stalker had introduced himself as the landlord of the downstairs flat.

She said: "I honestly thought he owned the place. The garden was completely overgrown.

"He would come and cut the grass and sort the back garden out. I think he put new windows in there too.

"It's a bit sad really. Knowing this now, he was obviously trying to do everything he could to find the owner, but this property in Wimbledon was going to waste."

Stripping and lapdancing to continue

A Kingston nightclub has been granted a sex establishment licence, allowing it to offer striptease and lapdancing to customers.

An application to operate a sexual entertainment venue at Ama-gi, in High Street, was approved by the Kingston Town

Neighbourhood Committee last week, despite 26 objections.

The strip shows will be restricted to Thursday nights, from 9pm to 2.30am, and Saturday nights, from 9pm until 3.30am.

The club was previously licenced to offer sexual entertainment, offering strip shows from October 2009 to February 2011, but has had to re-apply due to changes to the law.

The sex establishment licence lasts for one year, beginning on April 1, after which the club will have to reapply.

Axe begins to fall but town's fire engine safe

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingston fire station will not be losing one of its engines as feared, it has been announced.

But 12 London stations will close, with seven two-pump stations losing an appliance, as part of plans to cut £65m from London Fire Brigade's budget.

However, four other stations, including Twickenham, will gain a new engine.

Liberal Democrat London Assembly member Stephen Knight said: "As an assembly member and as a member of the fire authority, I am not happy at all about London losing one in 10 of its fire stations. I think it really reduces the fire brigade's reach across London."

"It may not directly affect Kingston and Twickenham, but it still puts Londoners' safety at risk, so I and my colleagues are opposing it."

The plans were announced last week by London fire commissioner Ron Dobson.

Mr Dobson said: "Like virtually every other public service, the brigade needs to make savings."

"Additional savings cannot be found without making significant changes to how we keep London

Safe: Kingston fire station will not now lose an engine KT70083 safe. In the last decade, demand for the brigade's service has changed dramatically and it is time to reflect that in how our fire stations, engines and staff are organised.

"With all the work we do to prevent fires happening, and response times that are still among the best in the country, I am confident these savings can be made while keeping London safe."

But Paul Neale, London south-west area organiser for the Fire Brigades Union, said: "This is devastating, in no uncertain terms.

"I don't know where to begin. This is going to put the public at risk. It is going to put firefighters at risk."

"It is just appalling, and they are getting away with it."

Earlier this week, London Mayor Boris Johnson hinted in a radio interview that firefighters could attend 999 calls in Minis, a practice trialled at the London Olympics.

That proposal did not feature in the safety plan, but Mr Neale said: "To be told it looks as if we're going to have to travel round in Minis is unreal."

Party's 'privatisation' clash over child services merger

Kingston Council's leader has said he has concerns about turning the children's services department into an independent social enterprise after it merges with Richmond.

Liberal Democrats in neighbouring Richmond had called an extraordinary council meeting, to be held as the Kingston Guardian went to press, to discuss their Conservative-led authority's plans.

Richmond opposition members are concerned the model could see a private contractor providing children's services with less public accountability

by ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

and transparency.

Plans to merge the services under one jointly owned company, Achieving for Children, are already well under way.

Kingston Council leader Councillor Derek Osbourne admitted Kingston had "concerns" about Richmond's vision, but disagreed with his Liberal Democrat Party colleagues that services would be privatised.

Coun Osbourne said: "Privatisation is a politically loaded, old-fashioned expression. It's a 1980s word. We've had a considerable number of discussions with Richmond and we know where one another are. It's always been Richmond's intention to move to that model. We have some concerns about that - we're not convinced entirely that that's the direction we want to go.

"What I would like to see is how it operates as a company before we consider the social enterprise model.

"We are not opposed to social enterprise in principle.

"I would expect a Richmond report to set out where they would like to be, but it isn't our agreement to go to a social enterprise at this stage. There's a huge desire to co-operate, and no desire to disagree."

Richmond's Lib Dem leader Stephen Knight said: "You can call virtually any company a social enterprise if it has a social element - it just has to fulfil some sort of community duty. Even a social enterprise won't be accountable to people in the way the council is.

"Who is to say it will not be bought by a big company such as Serco in the future?"

Boost for council homes

Nearly 200 council homes have been modernised as part of Kingston Council's Better Homes project.

Madan and Ranjan Patel's home in Cross Road, Kingston, has become the 195th to be modernised with a new kitchen and bathroom.

Better Homes is the biggest council housing investment programme in the borough for decades.

The £65m scheme, that is in the first phase of a five-year programme, aims to improve thousands of homes across the borough.

Kingston Council leader councillor Derek Osbourne said: "We're making big improvements to the quality of people's homes and their daily lives.

"We're making Kingston an even better place to live for our tenants, and it is great to see the work progressing."

'Mr Bean may save me'

A self-exiled university music lecturer believes a law change championed by Mr Bean may help him return to the country and overturn a public order conviction.

Howard Fredrics was convicted in his absence of threatening and abusive behaviour after he harangued former vice-chancellor Sir Peter Scott in the street in July 2009 and wrongly accused him of being a criminal.

Home Secretary Theresa May said using insulting words or behaviour would no longer be a crime after peers in the House of Lords voted to remove it from Section 5 of the Public Order Act.

Comedian Rowan Atkinson, who plays Mr Bean, has said the law had a "chilling effect on free expression and free protest".

On Twitter Dr Fredrics said: "Since Section 5 conviction was for calling Sir Peter Scott a criminal (ie, threatening) my appeal will succeed."

Kingston police still have Dr Fredrics on their Most Wanted list.

Man at door pleaded for beds plans to go ahead

The Kingston Guardian has previously reported on a controversial planning application to build on the site of a nature reserve in Portsmouth Road, alongside the Thames in Kingston.

Funnily enough, a man turned up at our door, pretending to be a concerned resident, and asked me to sign a letter addressed to the council, pleading for this development to go ahead as it was for the good of us all.

According to him, we residents need to stick together and fight back against the evil council conspiracy.

Only the philanthropic property developers were prepared to stick up for us and build a walkway so we could walk from Harts Boatyard to the Surbiton Bike Shop. That was his story anyway.

Oddly, although just a concerned resident, he had a stack of glossy brochures he could leave with me.

And a pre-written letter to send to the council before it was too late.

I did not sign, but I took some of his leaflets and a letter.

If I did not know how scrupulous property developers are, I would suspect that they were pulling a fast one.

Jeff Reardon, the president of the New Malden Rotary Club and Rotarians would like to thank New Malden residents for their generosity during the Santa Claus street collections, which raised £6,300.

Local good causes and international charities will benefit. Help this Christmas included food vouchers, a contribution to the food bank and Christmas lunches for the lonely and disabled.

Thanks also for contributing to the appeal started in May to replace the Christmas lights in High Street.

This was a great success and £7,000 was raised and new lights purchased.

In the new year we hold the Youth Speaks competition for schools, held at the Methodist Church in the High Street.

Starting on January 8, until March 12, mock interviews will start at Richard Challoner School.

Every Tuesday four Rotary

Club members will interview pupils and give them feedback to help when applying for college, university or employment.

National stroke awareness day is in April. Our stall in High Street enables the public to have their blood pressure checked for free by a qualified nurse and, if necessary, they are advised to visit their GP.

The Kids Out club continues to support schools with a day's visit to Thorpe Park in the summer. Rotarians also help children to read at King's Oak and King Athelstan schools.

In November the very popular Dave Marrion Big Band plays at the Methodist Church in the High Street.

Finally, the clock in the High Street opposite Tudor Williams was paid for the Rotary Club, which meets all its running costs.

Take a lead on air quality

We are still without an air quality monitoring station since the one at Tolworth closed in 2009.

With schools next to the A3

we need the council and our MPs to show some leadership on this.

Why keep counter open when officer could be on beat?

I am replying to the article (Axe hovers over police counter opened in 2011, January 17).

The Millbank front counter is earmarked for closure based on very low usage. We are not closing the site and the Alexandra, Berrylands, Tolworth and Hook teams will continue to use the base.

Millbank's front counter rarely gets visited more than four times a day and often not at all. I have to keep a community support officer there for eight hours a day waiting for callers when they could be out on the [beat].

We will look for other ways for the public to contact us when they need assistance. But, as things stand, I can see no reason to keep the Millbank front counter open.

Educating The Future

Southborough High School 'Flying High'

Southborough High School offers a first class, rounded education to boys of all talents and abilities, aged 11-18, with a mixed Sixth Form. Our vision for our students is aspirational, combining excellent pastoral care with academic achievement and a wide variety of enrichment activities.

A Sporting Chance of Success

Sport plays an integral part of the educational mix here at Southborough and the P.E department ensures that our boys get the opportunity to take part in a variety of sports including Football, Rugby, Basketball, Badminton and Table Tennis. Our newly equipped weights gym and fitness suite is a particular hit with both Upper School and Sixth Form students and Southborough School also continues to be the largest provider in the Borough of Wimbledon Ball Boys each year, something that the school is particularly proud of.

Our cricket team performed exceptionally well last season – coming third in the National Cricket Finals and they were delighted to have Former England fast bowler Gladstone Small present the team with their hard-earned medals! Indeed, the boys are extremely excited about their first ever European Cricket Tour, which takes place in Corfu during the forthcoming Easter Break.

A Wide Range of Extra Curricular Activities On Offer

Southborough School strongly believes that each and every student should have access to a wide variety of extra-curricular activities. That's why you'll find that our lunch time and after school clubs are completely free of charge to all our boys. We offer, amongst many others, clubs in Gardening, Guitar Playing, Street Dance, Arts & Crafts, Language & Culture, Media - in the form of 'Runescape' and 'Shift' – and there's even a club where students can learn to play the Ukulele this year! The school's chess club is so popular amongst students that we have to run it three times a day!

F.O.S.H

As any parent knows, it pays to develop a positive working relationship with their child's school when he or she reaches secondary education. Here at Southborough we are proud to say that we have a great many parents that support us every step of the way in their son's education. Some parents go the extra mile and the wonderful members of our parents' association F.O.S.H (Friends of Southborough High) really do pull out all the stops to ensure that our boys get the level of education that they truly deserve!

Getting The Very Best From Our Boys

Our dedicated staff really know how to get the very best out of our boys and their hard work and commitment to students' academic and personal development are key to our achieving outstanding GCSE and A level results. Great learning, however, often means giving students the opportunity and responsibility to put what they've learnt on paper into 'real life' practice.

That's why you'll see Southborough students across a range of subject disciplines (including Media, Art, Design, Catering, Music, Drama and Performing Arts) regularly working together as a team to organise - from conception right through to delivery - a rich variety of events that take place in the Southborough school calendar, including our Murder Mystery Evening, Senior Citizens Afternoon Tea, Musical Concerts and Carol Services, numerous Awards ceremonies and annual Arts Festival. By students transferring their knowledge into running real life projects, it gives our boys a real sense of achievement and aids their learning beyond measure.

How to succeed in losing weight this year

Have you ever tried to lose weight and failed? You're not alone. It's time to stop blaming yourself as new research reveals how both your environment – and your body – have been conspiring against you, sabotaging your good intentions and leaving you with little chance of success.

A growing body of emerging science is showing that today's overloaded food environment is one of the most important reasons why we tend to over eat (and not our weak willpower).

As a result, Weight Watchers has launched Weight Watchers' New Approach, a refined version of its successful ProPoints plan, which helps you find realistic and practical ways to manage your environment and put you firmly in the driving seat.

And with many of us making New Year's resolutions to lose weight, now is the perfect time to start to sort your surroundings.

Here, local Weight Watchers' leader Rachel Fryer, who lost nearly 6st herself with Weight Watchers tells us how we can accommodate some of life's guilty pleasures, while still building a healthier lifestyle and seeing success at the scales.

ADVERTISEMENT

● Drink dilemmas Alcohol can hinder weight loss by lowering your resolve and providing extra calories. And those celebratory wines and beers can also lead you to eat and drink more than you planned.

Solution It's all in the choice: "By making smarter choices, you can still enjoy a tippie without tipping the scales. Try swapping a 175ml glass of wine for a 25ml vodka and soda. Or swap a pint of Guinness for half a pint of lager."

● Snack attack When you're sticking to a food plan, the abundance of leftover savoury and sweet snacks around at this time of year can make you feel driven to distraction!

Solution Nibble know-how. If you snack, track. Be aware of the ProPoints values and portion sizes of the foods you like. Keep track of what you eat and drink and you can still see success at the scales.

● Chocolate overload Boxes of chocolates adorning your workplace? Cupboards overflowing at home with treats from visitors? With chocolate all around, it can be hard to resist.

Solution Plan your treats. If chocolate spells heaven for you, plan for it. Create room in your ProPoints budget so you can enjoy a treat without worry. And also, make sure that you have other, more weight-loss friendly treats at hand – such as gorgeous, fresh clementines.

Rachel says: "Remember, you can't control what you feel, but you can control your surroundings. So start sorting your surroundings and learn how you can tackle your overloaded food environments now, to ensure you can have your cake and eat it in 2013!"

A gain in the neck

A zoo has welcomed some friends in high places.

These two giraffes, right, were spotted necking as they crossed the threshold of their new home at Chessington World of Adventures.

The boys, Tonda, Kismet, Karamoja and Kito, arrived at the park from zoos across the UK and will spend the next few months settling in.

by HANA HAUSMEISTER

hana.hausmeister@london.newsquest.co.uk

David Smith, general manager at the resort, said: "Giraffes are magnificent, majestic animals and we are sure our visitors will be very excited to meet them next year."

These Rothschild giraffes, native to the Kenyan and Ugandan areas, are all male and will form a new herd.

After two years they will be introduced to a female of the species.

With a bit of luck, animal-lovers might see bouncing baby giraffes next time they visit.

Add in a few flamingos, zebras and white rhinos and it should make the Zafari: Ride into Africa site a real safari experience.

If your pension is less than £142 a week call Age UK on 0800 169 6565 for help getting the cash you might be missing out on.

You can also visit your local Citizens Advice Bureau.

MAYOR OF LONDON

"I don't need caring for..."

...but I could do with a little help"

When loved ones first need a helping hand it's often with the little things that become increasingly difficult with age. Homecare Select can provide as much or as little help as they need with cleaning, ironing, shopping, preparing meals, getting out and about, or just having company.

Our helpers are called enablers because they enable those they help to maintain their quality of life and remain independent in their own homes. They are chosen to match the personalities of those they enable, so that help around the home can grow, like friendship, into a trusting relationship.

Help around the home and more, for less than you'd expect

Relight your fire

A new generation of wood burning stoves

With wood burning technology racing ahead, a new generation of stoves are taking centre stage. They are so efficient as to be virtually smokeless and they have been approved by DEFRA for use in Smoke Control Areas - which covers Bristol and Bath.

Last year, sales of wood burners hit an all time high and this trend is set to continue as fuel prices continue to rise and we seek alternative, greener sources of heat for our homes.

Kindle Stoves are your local specialist in clean burn stoves and have a range of beautifully designed modern as well as traditional styles, perfect for a new extension or an existing fireplace. A stove brings a warm focal point to your home and they now run at over 80% efficiency, unlike an open fire in a grate which is around 10% efficient. With their Cleanburn technology they are also easy to use and to care for.

Kindle offer a full HETAS registered supply & installation service to include fireplace alterations, hearths, surrounds, chimney lining and twin wall insulated flue systems.

Kindle are your local approved stockists of the world renowned Clearview Stoves as well as Contura, Morso, Rais, Burley Mendip, Westfire and more.

NEVER MIND THIS ISN'T THE

Sex Pistols

Join the CIRCUS

Crime author James Craig visits Hook Library to talk about his new novel as part of a readers' day event.

The latest in a four-part series, The Circus features Inspector Carlyle, an unexceptional policeman caught in a web of corruption and unsure of his next move. The story takes inspiration from the recent phone-hacking scandal.

Craig says: "It deals with issues that are very close to home. It's looking at that area where the police and the political establishment interact and can be corrupted."

"It's about a guy who knows what the right thing to do is, but doesn't know if he can do it. If the price of doing it is too great, he's prepared to walk away."

Craig will sign copies of the new book. He says: "This will be the first time I've spoken at a library."

I'm looking forward to it."

Other attractions on the day include a session with Mary Hooper, author of the popular Megan series of books aimed at teens, from 1pm to 2pm, a music class for under-fives, and a book-making workshop.

News in brief

8547 6254 for more information or sign up at Hook library.

There will be anarchy at the home of the Ks this weekend, as one of the world's leading Sex Pistols tribute acts comes to town, writes Ross Logan.

The Sex Pistols Experience play Kingsmeadow Live this Saturday, promising to reawaken the spirit of 1977 with some blistering renditions of the band's best-known tracks.

Formed in 2001, the Sex Pistols Experience have played thousands of shows across the world, to crowds in Europe, the US and South America, with the likes of God Save the Queen and Anarchy in the UK.

And they will be joined at Kingsmeadow by none other than Ed Tudor-Pole, whose own back story is intrinsically linked with the original Sex Pistols.

The former frontman of punk group Tenpole Tudor, Tudor-Pole appeared in 1980 mockumentary film The Great Rock 'n' Roll Swindle as a potential replacement for Pistols vocalist Johnny Rotten.

So expect a riotous night at Kingstonian FC's home ground this weekend.

Paul Crook, drummer and founder of the Sex Pistols Experience, says:

"We've played the venue a couple of times in the past and it's always a great night."

"But this is the first time we've been there with Ed, and it's always a good time with him."

"He was in the Great Rock 'n' Roll Swindle, and actually auditioned to replace Johnny Rotten in the Pistols. He did actually get it, but then Sid got arrested and that was the end of the group."

"We thought it was a bit of a no-brainer and asked him if he cared to join us on stage."

"That was about eight years ago, and we've become very good friends now."

Ed Tudor-Pole will be performing an acoustic set of punk songs before the band take to the stage.

But whether the former Crystal Maze host will be joining the band for a few numbers remains a secret.

Crook says: "That would spoil the surprise."

We've played the venue a couple of times and it's always a great night

ED TUDOR-POLE

Make your move in 2013

Home-hunters can make a new start in 2013 by securing their choice of properties available at Taylor Wimpey's developments in Surrey.

The housebuilder currently has a selection of five-bedroom houses available at its Hinchley Park development in Hinchley Wood, near Esher, and a new collection of apartments is about to be released soon at the Plaza II in Surbiton.

The five-bedroom houses at Hinchley Park are priced from £845,000. The Plot 131 'Wentworth II' detached house is available for £900,000 and features a contemporary kitchen/breakfast room and a separate dining room, each opening through French doors to the private rear garden, plus a spacious lounge, a family room and a guest cloakroom off the entrance hallway.

Upstairs, the first-floor landing leads to a bedroom with walk-in dressing area and en-suite, three further double bedrooms and a main bathroom, while a master bedroom with walk-in dressing area and en-suite facilities enjoys appealing seclusion on the top floor.

To find out more about Hinchley Park, property-seekers should visit the sales information centre, in Hengest Avenue, off Poplar Road, Hinchley Wood which is open Thursday to Monday from 10.30am to 5.30pm, alternatively call 0845 026 5212.

One, two and three-bedroom apartments are soon to be released soon at The Plaza II, Surbiton. Property-seekers can register an interest by calling 0845 072 6254 or visiting www.taylorwimpey.co.uk/swt.

House sales set to rise

House sales across the UK look set to increase during the coming year say surveyors.

Last month, 24 per cent more surveyors across the country predicted transactions to rise rather than fall over the next quarter.

This more positive outlook comes at a time when confidence has been growing that the market in some parts of the country may now be over the very worst.

In tandem with this, prices held steady during December. This is the first time since June 2010 that the national price balance has not been negative and – with prices forecast by RICS to rise by two per cent during 2013 – it seems that the market in some areas of the country may have started to bottom out.

This stability looks set to persist with surveyors no longer taking a negative view of the price outlook between now and March. This is the first time that respondents have not predicted further drops over the following three months since the summer of 2010.

Turning to market activity, the number of homes coming up for sale remained relatively stable last month, while demand from would-be buyers saw a continued increase. During December, a net balance of twelve percent more surveyors reported an increase in new buyer enquiries. This reading has now been in positive territory for four months. Across the UK, London once again bucked the overall trend and saw significant increases in prices.

Peter Bolton King, RICS global residential director, said: "As we start the new year confidence in the housing market does appear to be improving, helped in part by the impact of the Funding for Leading Scheme.

Indeed, our members are predicting that transaction levels will continue increasing in many parts of the country and it may be that we are now over the very worst.

"That said, more still needs to be done to ensure potential buyers can access the market at every level. There is still a clear need for more homes to be built."

Cash boost to tackle bottlenecks

Funding to improve local roads and ease congestion

Advice for local councils wanting to apply for a share of a £170million fund to remove bottlenecks on the local highway network and support growth-enhancing development has been published by Transport Secretary Patrick McLoughlin.

The fund is available to local highway and transport authorities in England.

Transport for London will be able to bid for up to £10m of the fund. This funding forms part of an additional £1.5 billion of government investment, announced in the Chancellor's Autumn Statement, to improve the road network and reduce congestion.

The Local Pinch Point Fund will tackle obstacles on the local transport network that restrict growth by limiting the movement of goods, employees and customers.

The investment will build on the success of the Highways Agency's Pinch Point Fund for the Strategic Road Network, which received an extra £100 million in the Autumn Statement.

Transport Secretary Patrick McLoughlin said: "Tackling congestion and making the most of our infrastructure is essential for economic growth. We have already provided significant funding to local authorities to promote growth but more can be done.

"That is why we are providing this additional £170 million to help councils free up key bottlenecks on the highway network.

"This funding will unlock development sites to help local businesses and communities. This investment will fund improvements which have an immediate impact on growth with the aim that all schemes will be delivered as quickly as possible – funding will be available until March 2015.

The schemes delivered as part of this programme will help create additional jobs and housing and could include:

- improving existing local roads to ease congestion bottlenecks, speed up journey times and improving reliability;

- provision of new roads, junctions or roundabouts to improve access to business or

- housing development sites or
- strengthening or repairing of bridges or retaining walls which would otherwise lead to traffic restrictions and cause delays for traffic.

Cochrane slams president change

Former Kingstonian owner Jimmy Cochrane, pictured right, has labelled the replacement of life president Lawrence Cooley as a disgrace.

Cooley, appointed to the role 12 years ago, was asked to step down before Christmas by current chairman

John Fenwick.

The former director saw his offer to step down at the end of the campaign turned down, leading to Fenwick and the board replacing him with 1960s goal hero John McCormack earlier this month, with immediate effect.

Silver shooter: Surbiton shooter Michael Bamsey

Kingston pair in the medals

Surbiton shooter Michael Bamsey and Kingston hockey star Josie Inverdale returned from the Australian Youth Olympic Festival laden with medals this week.

Bamsey secured a clean sweep of silver medals in the 10m air pistol, 50m 3P rifle and 10m air rifle events, while Inverdale was part of the Team GB women's hockey team that claimed bronze with a 2-1 extra-time win over USA.

Team GB collected a record 66 medals – including 19 golds – at the event in Sydney, which featured 1,700 athletes from 30 nations competing in 17 Olympic disciplines.

Team GB chef de mission Mark England said: "I have no doubt the experience gained will help them towards pursuing a place at the Rio 2016 Olympic Games and their transition to senior international sportsmen and women – some of them in time for the 2014 Commonwealth Games in Glasgow."

Vines is out to down Robins

by STUART AMOS

samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingstonian striker Paul Vines is hoping Carshalton Athletic continue their Ryman Premier Division revival, but not at the expense of his new club.

Vines signed for Ks at the weekend after agreeing a switch to Kingsmeadow from Cray Wanderers, who he had joined in the wake of stringent cutbacks at the Robins earlier in the season.

Carshalton, who host Ks on Saturday, have been in freefall since Vines left the club, but back-to-back wins over Enfield Town and Cray have Athletic, managed by former Kingstonian midfielder Tommy Williams, dreaming of safety.

But the 29-year-old former Tooting & Mitcham United frontman, who has 10 goals to his name this term, is out to end that run with Ks.

"What happened at Carshalton was unfortunate and them slipping to the bottom of the table was to be expected after the exodus of players there," he said.

"It will be nice to see some familiar faces. There is a good bunch of people there who work very hard behind the scenes.

"I still look out for their results.

"They have had a good run recently, but hopefully that ends this week."

Vines, who had a spell with Ks in 2011, moved to Cray to team up with older brother centre back Joe, who is in the twilight of his career.

Vines junior was part of the Ks team that narrowly missed out on the play-offs in 2011, thanks to a 3-3 final day draw at Margate – and he is out to put that right.

"Alan Dowson approached me in the summer, but I went to Cray to play with my brother. It didn't quite work out and luckily Alan gave me another call," he added.

"Joe is the sort of defender I would not want to play against, so I hope he joins a club we have already played twice.

"With myself, Andre McCollin and Wade Small, there is competition for places, but we are three different types of strikers which means Alan can mix things up.

"I think we have the fire power to get in the play-offs."

All-rounder Undrom jets off for worlds

Kingston AC & Polytechnic Harriers' Mikael Undrom heads to the Special Olympics World Winter Games in South Korea with a sense of pride.

The 25-year-old won two golds at the Great Britain National Alpine Skiing Championships in Italy 12 months ago to book his place on the plane to the Far East.

Cobham-based Undrom won gold at the Special Olympics European Boddensee Golf Cup in Austria last June and won multiple medals at the Down's Syndrome Athletics World Championship in Azores 2012 and the Down's Syndrome Athletics European Championship in Sardinia 2011.

"I've done Special Olympics for two years and it plays a large part in my life. Sport is a great way to keep fit and meet people and I'm proud to be going to South Korea," added Undrom.

Going east: Kingston AC's Mikael Undrom flies off this week

SPORTSbrief

FOOTBALL: Not satisfied with one new face Kingstonian boss Alan Dowson has secured the loan signing of Dagenham & Redbridge youngster Ian Gayle. The 20-year-old made 31 appearances on loan at Kingsmeadow last term.

Dowson, who expects to make a third signing ahead of the weekend, added: "Ian was happy when he was with us and we were happy with him. It made sense to put this deal together."

Saturday's postponed home clash with Lowestoft Town will be played on March 25, while the London Senior Cup tie with Hanwell is on March 4 at Kingsmeadow.

FOOTBALL: Ryman Division One South Corinthian Casuals suffered Surrey Senior Cup heartache last week as they were knocked out 4-3 on penalties after holding Blue Square South Sutton United to a 0-0 draw after extra time. Boss Kim Harris' men host Sittingbourne this weekend after Saturday's trip to Herne Bay was called off.

RUGBY UNION: Surrey Division One Kingston welcome Old Freemans to Hook Road on Saturday, while Old Tiffinians travel to Old Whitgiftians.

FOOTBALL: Eton School take on Allyn's School in the Elgin Capital Southern League Final at Corinthian Casuals on Monday night.
